A LIE NAILED.—It has pleased certain water manufacturers and other competitors to circulate the senseless story that our spring is closed to the public, and that the bottling of the water is carried on in secret.

As a matter of fact, we welcome visitors by the hundred every month, and are always glad to show them through our bottling plant, every foot of which is open to inspection. Chemists, doctors, lawyers, clergymen, always welcome. It is not strange that competitors who cannot win in a fair fight are forced to build up their reputations by assailing us, but LONDONDERRY LITHIA has come to stay, and there is no better proof than may be discovered by visiting our works, inspecting our books, and studying our thousands of endorsements, which are so numerous that we never attempt to print them all. The following is of interest:

"The Lithia Spring, situate in Londonderry, New Hampshire, which has become so widely and popularly known to the profession, has recently doubled its capacity for bottling this excellent mineral water, by enlarging its works at Nashua.

"The writer visited both the spring and the bottling establishment the past summer, and was surprised to learn of the quantity of water which was being shipped. The profession and the public have learned to look upon this water as a specific in many allments to which the human body is heir, hence the great demand which is made for it all over the country, New York City and Chicago being the largest distributing points."—By Editor A. K. HILLS, M. D., in New York Medical Times.

A BATTLE WITH BOTTLES.

BODA WATER BOTTLES MET BY BUDWEISER BEER BOTTLES.

Butler's Saloon in Brooklyn Attacked by Boycotters After They Had Lured the Police Away by a Trick-Clubs Opposed to Bottles and Five Arrests Made. A battle of bottles was fought on Sunday evening in Brooklyn. The contestants were members of the United Beer Brewers' Association with their friends on one side and P. H. er, assisted by his bartender, P. H. Mannix, and four policemen from the Amity street sta-tion on the other. The bottles used in the fray for the atta tles for the defence, the beer being of a boynotted brand. Therein lies the trouble which has kept the neighborhood of Hicks and Baltic streets in a turmoil for the past week. me time ago the United Beer Brewers' Asdistion boycotted Budweiser beer. One by one oon keepers of Brooklyn gave up the sale of the objectionable beverage, but P. H. Butler, whose saloon is at Butler and Hicks streets, anbounced in unmistakable terms that he proposed to sell whatever beer he pleased. Since then his saloon has been guarded by the police. As long emen were near everything was peaceful, but when they wandered away to other parts of the beat the banded brewers arrived in ce, and evinced their disapproval of Mr. Butler by tossing bricks through his windows. They varied this pleasing performance by assaulting his customers and blocking up his doorway with barrels, but Butler kept right on selling beer to any one who was brave enough to buy. Every day or two there was a street fight, but the real battle didn't come off until Sunday. It was any one who was brave enough to buy. Every day or two there was a street fight, but the real battle didn't come off until Sunday. It was not entirely unexpected, for a few of Mr. Butler's enemies had come around early in the morning to recount to him an umber of unpleasant things that they were going to do to him and assure him that no beer, but whiskey alone, would be used in celebrating his wake. Mr. Butler can take a hint. He sent word to the Amity street station that trouble was brewing among the brewers, and Detectives Stoidiard and Hodder and Patrolmen Murphy and Keily were sent around to guard the place. Late in the afternoon half a dozen of the brewers' party and as many more of their friends appeared on the scene. After eying the policemen they held a consultation. Then the party split in two, half of them remaining near the salcon, where the policemen were standing with Butler and Mannix, while the other half walked up the street. Suddenly the six who had separated set up a fearful yell and promptly fell down unon the sidewalk in a heap. From the tangled mass came yells of pain and wrath.

"Lego my throat."

"Got! Help!"

The four policemen ran to the spot and began pulling the fighters apart. To their surprise they saw no battered countenances or broken limbs. Instead the disturbers lumped to their feet and assured the police that it was all right: it was only their way of onjoying themselves. Edging away, they started back toward the salcon at a stiff pace, and then the policemen got the solution of the puzzle. On the corner the liveliest kind of a light was going on between the six brewers and the salcon keeper and his bartender. Moreover, the six who had put up the fake fight were instening to the fray. The policemen ran back and arrived in the midst of a storm of bottles. A crate of soda bottles had been standing on the sidewalk, and the site of the beyonded had assistance had also selved except and the result was disastrous to his counclided that he couldn't stand the first landed in their leade "Here they are. Go fer 'em, boys' ii'wan now! Sock it to vin."

The brewers charged just as the police contingent arrived, and clubs were opposed to bottles. It was a lively fight, with shattering glass.

RIPPE SAID IT WAS HOT, egel Mauled Him and Knifed Him, d Must Pay $1,000 Damages.

The workmen were sweltering in the Steinway plano manufactury at Steinway on June 21. 1892, and some one in a batch of men grouped near the bench at which Henry Rippe was working, while they were philosophizing on the weather, remarked that it was hot. A wag suggested that it would be a good idea to turn on the steam. One of the standersby said, turning to Rippe at his bench: "Is it hot enough for you?"

Nobody assaulted this man, but as they wiped ff the perspiration, Rippe observed: "It is hot enough for me."

Edward Siegel, a stout, irritable German of about forty-five years, had been on had terms with Rippe, who is about his age, but short and thin. He said to Rippe:

"I'll quick close your big mouth; ain't it?" Rippe said he had not had a word with the tout German for about a month theretofore, they having avoided each other, and Rippe declared that he made no remark in return nor did he have a chance to say anything, as Siegel did he have a chance to say anything, as Siegel struck him on the back of the head with a heavy piece of ash wood.

Rippe jumped up and used his bench as a shield, but Siegel struck him on the hand, crushing one of his knuckles against the bench. Siegel then drew a long workman's knife and cut Rippe in the face, arm, and hand.

There was evidence yesterday on the trial of Rippe's action to recover $10,000 damages before Justice Harrett of the Supreme Court that Siegel had said several times before the assault that he was going to Europe, but that he wanted to do up Rippe before he sailed.

The Steinways paid the wages of Rippe for the six weeks that he was under treatment, but as an element of damages it was shown that while he formerly carned $20 to $20 a week, as the result of the injury to his knuckle he has to do lighter work now and earns only $15 a week.

Justice Barrett instructed the jury that the defendant had shown no extenuating circumstances for the assault, and that they were bound to find some verdict against the defendant. They brought in a verdict of $1,000.

He notified Anthony Comstock, who appeared in court against Aufrecht. Justice Voorhis held Aufrecht in $500 for trial.

Colima Still Pouring Out Lava.

Sr. Louis, Nov. 12 .- A special to the Globe Democrat from Guadalajara, Mexico, says that the volcano of Colima is still in active eruption, and the people are terror stricken. The crops at the base of the mountain have been destroyed by the burning lava that has poured down upon the fields. The red flames ascend to a great height, and the scene is a grand one, particularly at night, and is plainly visible for 200 miles. It is believed that this cruption is connected with the recent earthquakes that were fell throughout southern Mexico.

Cross, has brought against her to recover a mortgage for $1,100 on some lots at Westfield which Summer sold to the plaintiff. Miss Moll says Sumner sold to the plaintiff. Miss Moll says that Sumner made love to her. She reminded him that his age would make him a better father for her than a husband. He told her, so she declares, that he was worth $100,000, and that every dollar he touched doubled. When he said he had some lots at Westfield which he would let her have on a payment of $500, which he would let her have on a payment of $500, which he would shortly resel for her at a profit of $400, she accepted his proposition.

She declared in papers presented yesterday by her counsel, Henry B. Bradbary, that she went out to Westfield and found that a mortgage for $1,100 on the lots had been copied on the court flee and purported to have been executed by her. She declares that this mortgage, which appears to have been executed before Sumner, as notary, is a forgery, and that she has not the original nor has she ever seen it. Her counterclaim was for the $1,100 which, she says, is the amount of the damage to her lots by the fling of a fraudulent mortgage. Sumner assigned the alleged mortgage to his daughter. Justice Ehrich reserved decision.

Ex-Minister Potter's 61ft to Pennsylvania

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—Ex-Minister Wil-liam Potter has curiched the library of the University of Pennsylvania by the gift of a com-plete set of Hansard's Parliamentary debates. It makes 450 volumes and covers the proceed-ings and speeches in the British Parliament ings and speeches in the British Parliament from 1066 to 1801. This is a very valuable, and, in its completeness, a most rare work in this country. It is the depositary and source of our parliamentary law, and will afford historical students an opportunity near at hand for investigating points in English history in what are practically original documents. Mr. Potter's gift is understood to be the last complete set of these debates offered or likely to be offered for sale, and will be valued accordingly.

Third avenue and 145th street. A bout the same time he sold three $1,000 St. Louis and Iron Mountain Rallway bonds, bearing the numbers 136, 165, and 779, to White, Morris & Co., bankers, of 102 Broadway.

The comoons attached to those bonds were presented for payment in St. Louis and were rejected on the ground that the bonds had been stolen. Mr. Walsh then sent the bond purchased from Lawyer Schooley to Inspector McLaughlin. The bond was treated chemically by Prof. Doremus, and the original number, 737, was brought into view, together with Mrs. Gay's name. Schooley was arrested and released under $4,000 bail, furnished by Mrs. Eva M. Rapp of 1,029 East 136th street. He jumped his ball and it was found that Mrs. Rapp's property had been sold. A bench warrant was issued for Schooley on Feb. 21 last, but he was not found. Acting Plistrict Attorney Davis was informed yesterday that Schooley was carrying on his law business, as usual, at 310 Greenwich street. Mr. Davis expressed great surprise and sent word to Superintendent Byrnes to have the bench warrant served at once.
